THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

More "Economists" Coming

Washington, April 20.

AFTER the war ended, there was a general expectation that immediately the vast and swollen Federal bureaucracy would begin to shrivel. In a very short time, it was thought, hundreds of thousands of unnecessary jobholders would be "liquidated" and the gigantic governmental pay roll be greatly reduced. Thus, the taxpayers' burden would be lightened and the chance of recovering control of the Federal finances enhanced.

—o—

THAT was the idea, but it has not worked out that way. On the contrary, events have shown that those who cherished this hope were utterly innocent and naive. For, the fact is that there has been little "liquidation" and certainly no reduction. A few agencies have been officially canceled, but that does not mean that the thousands of small jobholders have been separated from the pay roll. These were transferred, shifted, spread around through the departments, but relatively few dropped.

—o—

A STRIKING instance of this is furnished by the late—and always wasteful and incompetent—Office of War Information. With no war, of course, there could be no possible excuse for an OWI. Hence its dissolution was ordered. The saintly Elmer Davis and a considerable number of his merry men did really depart—but not all of them—not, it is estimated, some 4,000 of them. These remnants of the OWI were slickly transferred to the State Department. What they have been doing there for the past nine months no one seems to know.

—o—

PRESUMABLY, they are to form the advance guard of the great "information service" with which the department expects to enlighten the earth concerning the virtues of the United States, spreading sweetness and light throughout the world, thus endearing ourselves to the peoples of many lands. It is a neat, though not inexpensive, scheme; but, as yet, Congress has failed to warm to it; has, in fact, made a number of objections and, up to now, refused to appropriate the $20,000,000 needed to make it function. However, even if the money is not provided, the odds are very strong that the 4,000 former OWI boys will not be thrown to the wolves. Those fellows have dug in.

—o—

AND what is true of the OWI boys is true of a lot of others. It is almost incredible how many have been shifted, how few have been dropped. Actually, the civilian pay roll has increased instead of decreased. Instead of old boards and commissions being abolished, new ones have been created by a Congress that bleats about economy but practices extravagance. The new Economic Council is a splendid example. This agency was created by the so-called full employment bill which became a law a few weeks ago. Its members—there are three of them, at $15,000 each—have not been named by the President but are expected to be shortly.

—o—

AS enacted, this is a silly and futile law, with which even its original sponsors were disgusted. And the council will be a silly and useless council—unable to do anything but make futile "recommendations" to the President. Yet, there is real competition for the jobs. Pressure upon the President for them comes from several directions—most of it from the CIO and the radical elements. These are anxious for the jobs—first, because of the salary; second, because of the opportunity to disseminate propaganda.

—o—

IN addition, the council, it is understood, will be "served" by an "economic staff" of more than 200. This keenly interests the liberal "economists," hundreds of whom, left over from the Roosevelt regime, are looking around for better berths. In the Roosevelt day every "liberal" who could count above ten without taking off his shoes, called himself an economist. This Economic Council will not be the only new commission this Congress will create. The tendency to increase instead of reduce is still strong. They know—these members of Congress—they ought not to add to the burden, but they shut their eyes and do so. It is, of course, intensely discouraging to sincere and courageous advocates of reduction like Senator Byrd. But nothing much can be done about it until and unless real White House determination to cut is shown. And not in thirteen years has there been so much as a trace of such determination.

Baby Has First Degree Burns; Coach Destroyed

CROYDON, Apr. 20—When her clothing and the coach in which she was lying caught fire yesterday from sparks from a tree which had become ignited nearby, baby Eleanor Clark suffered first degree burns of the body. The child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, Sycamore avenue.

The baby had heavy outergarments on, and it is believed that these prevented more serious burns. When discovery was made that the coach and the baby's clothing were afire, Mrs. Clark rushed to the child's aid and rolled little Eleanor on the ground to extinguish the flames. Bucks Co. Rescue Squad was summoned, and the baby taken to Harriman Hospital, Bristol. After treatment she returned to her home.

Later the tree which burned considerably, crashed to the ground. The coach was practically destroyed.

WORLD GRIPPED BY GNAWING STARVATION

Report on One of Worst Crises in History is Given By Davis

MORE AID IS NEEDED

(Editor's Note: The world is gripped by one of the worse crises in history—gnawing starvation. Chester C. Davis, a leader in the fight against global hunger, herewith presents an exclusive first hand report on the situation as Chairman of the President's Famine Emergency Committee. He stresses the importance of his committee's recommendations for helping to feed Europe and Asia.)

By Chester C. Davis
Chairman, President's Famine Emergency Committee
(Written Expressly for I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 20—(INS)—Around the globe today, more people are hungry, more are threatened with death, more are unable to work because of lack of food than ever before in the memory of living men.

The people in the famine countries have now used up the stocks of food they produced in 1945. Only imports from the rest of the world will carry them through until their own 1946 harvests come in.

The United States has promised aid. We have been delivering aid. But we have not delivered as much as we should, and the need is now at the peak. By reducing our use of wheat and fats and shipping the food we are committed to ship, we can build for peace and recovery in the world. If we fail to do this, we invite unrest and retard progress.

The President's famine emergency committee has asked for self-denial by Americans at their tables. Not for severe sacrifice. We have in this country enough and to spare to keep up health and strength. All that is required is that we change our eating habits, make greater use of the plentiful foods, and go easier on wheat and fats.

But self-denial alone, it now becomes plain, will not put enough wheat on the ships soon enough to ward off famine in the weeks immediately ahead.

Therefore, the famine emergency commitee, while continuing to urge with every earnestness that consumers deny themselves wheat and fat products, and that farmers deliver their wheat for sale under the certificate plan, has recommended for consideration by the responsible government agencies new steps to get the food on the boats in April, May and June. We have asked that these authorities:

1. Restrict deliveries of flour for use in the United States so that consumer conservation may be translated at once into shipments.

2. Change the price relation between corn and hogs so as to encourage sale of corn and discourage excessive feeding of hogs. The corn thus released would replace wheat now being used for feeding animals instead of hungry children.

3. Require closer trim of hog and cattle carcasses and set aside for export the additional fat thus gained; keep edible oils and fats out of soap manufacture, and use all the expected increase in imports of vegetable oils for food purposes.

4. Urge farmers to plant the largest possible acreage of spring grain crops.

We have recommended other actions but these are the major ones.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

President Truman told the nation that a sound world could not be built on a foundation of human misery as he appealed to Americans again to share their food. He said "millions will surely die unless we eat less" in urging all to make some sacrifices as "a solemn obligation" so that others may live. Former President Hoover, speaking from Cairo on the same broadcast, asked Americans to cut their bread consumption to 200 grams a day. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson announced that domestic flour consumption would be limited to 75 per cent of last year's distribution as part of a six-point program to increase grain shipments to Europe.

Administration hopes that the modified OPA extension bill passed by the House on Thursday would be reinforced by the Senate to a satisfactory degree appeared to have little basis. In New York, the enforcement staff of the OPA maintained its drive against the black market in meat while retail butchers faced the Easter holiday with little to sell.

Chinese Communists reported that their forces had captured the Manchurian capital of Changchun. Government sources did not confirm this claim. General Marshall held a series of conferences in an effort to bring peace between the two factions.

While members of the Security Council were taking an Easter recess until Tuesday, there was said to be a growing sentiment among them for the appointment of a subcommittee to study whether the Franco regime is a menace to world peace.

The former Sir Samuel Hoare, now Viscount Templewood, Britain's wartime Ambassador to Spain, revealed in his memoirs that Generalissimo Franco had told him the Allies would lose the war and had urged that they sue for peace.

Moscow has been asked by Washington to start negotiations within two months for a $1,000,000,000 loan from the Export-Import Bank. Recognition of Yugoslavia by Washington and the promise of favorable consideration for a Russian loan were viewed by observers as friendly overtures to Russia in an effort to achieve a more harmonious atmosphere when the Council of Foreign Ministers convenes next Thursday.

The policy of indicating approval or disapproval of foreign governments through diplomatic representation or lack of it is being abandoned, Secretary of State Byrnes was reported to have told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

For a Joyous Easter

"Hark, angelic voices cry, Singing evermore on high"

THERE will be a new note of rejoicing in the voices that are lifted in song in the churches of America this Easter Sunday. For, to millions, Easter this year will bring the greatest spiritual happiness it has ever brought, and many a prayer of gratitude will be said for the presence of loved ones in the pew.

CONGRESS AND THE DRAFT

Few recent issues reveal more clearly the division of opinion in National affairs, as well as the confused state of public thinking, than the action of the Lower House of Congress concerning Selective Service.

By a vote of more than two to one, Congressmen indorsed a program of which it may be said that not one citizen in a hundred really understands either the reason or the purpose.

Yet logic, and neither whim nor political thinking, dictated the plan.

The most conspicuous point about the vote is that it broke through all party lines, as well as those of the so-called "unholy alliance" between Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans.

Despite the fact that the bill is quite contrary to the White House request, 174 Democrats voted for it and only 41 against. This is a Democratic ratio of more than four to one. Republicans divided much more evenly, 7 to 4; the Republican vote was 116 for and 65 against.

In each of these four groups of Congressmen, all areas of the nation were presented. Geographic lines disappeared as completely as political ones.

On the face of it, even without the barrage of propaganda which was promptly set up by those who want full military training and draft, the plan for which Congress voted appears to be contradictory and illogical.

Why was the draft extended at all, if Congress is so doubtful of its merits? Why eliminate the 18-year-olds, usually considered the natural source of draftees? Why take a draft holiday at this purportedly critical period? Why authorize the President, if he sees fit, to restore the inductions next October 15?

White House spokesmen were quick to term all these decisions "political." The White House, armed with the vocal skill of several million dollars worth of press agents on the public payroll, and the most active lobby ever turned loose on Congress, is in much better position than the Congressmen to express its views.

Congress badly needs a press-agent of its own. In default of that, the proposal to broadcast Congressional debates appears to be the only hope Congress has that its reasoning and intentions will not be misrepresented to those for whom it speaks—the American people.

Take the question of 18-year-old draftees—why was long precedent broken by their elimination? The answer is quite simple; the matter was elaborately discussed on the floor of Congress, though little has appeared elsewhere on the subject. The purpose of the desired recruits is policing occupied areas. This was made clear by one after another of the top military leaders of the country.

Now, policing is not a job for a teen-age boy; no one would seriously contend that it is. As Congressmen pointed out, not a city in the nation picks such youths for police work. Moreover, much of the "black-eye" which America is reported to have received in occupied lands has come from the pranks of soldiers not yet old enough to vote.

What can be more logical, in view of the purpose of the new recruitments, than for Congress to insist that recruitments for police-soldiers come from those who are mature in years?

Why was the draft extended at all? Simply because the White House has made such a point of the charge that the discontinuance of selective service would weaken our hand in dealing with Russian aggression.

Then why a holiday? Here again is a consideration which has received virtually no public attention. Months ago Congress demanded that the Army try voluntary enlistments. Brass hats said it wouldn't work. But according to reports made to Congress, voluntary enlistments are working in promising fashion—running about twice the rate the Army predicted.

With the further inducements of higher pay—provided for in the House measure—and a breaking down of the Army's caste system, now also being sought, Congress believes that all needed new soldiers can be obtained without a draft. The draft holiday is for the purpose of giving the voluntary plan a try-out.

Fathers are exempted for obvious reasons; a man with a family to support, according to most people's opinions, ought to be at home holding down a steady job. The great predominance of complaints to Congress about the

HE LIVES

Oh glad and happy Easter day,
To every heart most dear,
This day when Christ the Lord arose,
Conquering death and fear.

The tomb thought so secure could not,
Hold Jesus King of Kings,
Who burst the mighty bars of death,
As Heaven's music rings.

Oh men of earth be glad this day,
Your Saviour lives again,
He triumphed over sin and death,
O'er sorrow, grief and pain.

He lives today, He reigns on high,
This Prince of Peace divine,
Exalt His Name, accept His love,
From heaven's holy shrine.

CHRIST IS RISEN

The joyous festival of Easter is at hand. Christ is risen. The foretelling of the prophets is proved. It is the day that Mary went to the tomb, when it was yet dark, as is read in St. John, the twentieth chapter, and saw the stone had been taken away from the sepulchre, and reported to those that loved Jesus that the Lord was gone and they looked and believed.

All the promise of Christian teaching is in the event which is celebrated on Easter. The faithful have followed the travail of Christ through the season of Lent. They have searched within themselves, and they have weighed themselves according as is the counsel and teaching. They have cast out of their thoughts and out of their ways of life that which is evil, and they have met according to their light and their strength the test of Christian fortitude.

And now is come the emerging from the shadows. The hour of Caesar is thrust back into the abyss of untruth. The wrong way is left and closed. The suffering of martyrdom for the rightness of cause and the true light of brotherhood and oneness in the sight of God is rewarded. The Glory of God is once again proclaimed, once again in the procession of centuries since men found in the revelation a creed of striving and rising that satisfied the noblest yearnings and aspirations.

SCRAPING FLOUR BARREL

The government, because wheat for Europe is not becoming available in the quantity desired, is seeking ways and means of increasing supplies available for export. The plan to ration flour to bakers and grocers, but not to housewives, is a bit fantastic in that it is expected to cut down domestic consumption without giving the housewife the impression bread is being rationed.

When a nation rations bread, the situation would appear to be most desperate. Washington, with that in mind, would like to sugarcoat the dose.

Wheat went into hiding almost at the moment the order went out to reduce consumption of that cereal. A shortage was emphasized in all the announcements concerning need for greater shipments to Europe. A shortage can mean only one thing to the average mind—an increase in price.

The new wheat crop will begin to trickle to market in a little more than sixty days to improve a situation now described as critical. Meanwhile the government will do everything to reduce consumption without actually rationing bread. Such a move was not necessary during the war. It will not be taken now.

That jingling noise is coin in the pockets of 12,000,000 Americans, ready to buy new automobiles. Never before has the motorist wanted so much from so little.

Add Ho-Hum items: A magazine writer says the French have cooled amazingly toward Americans, whom they accuse of not sending relief fast enough.

working of the Selective Service Act concerned the delay in releasing fathers.

As to the matter of requiring affirmative action by the President to restore inductions next October (shortly before the Fall elections) Congressmen, who obviously feel that they have been pressured into extension of the draft, propose to put its resumption squarely on the lap where they believe it belongs—that of the President himself.

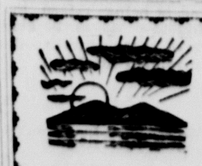

Part of the confusion in the minds of the public rises from straw votes which have been widely publicized by the White House forces, to the effect that there is an overwhelming sentiment in the nation for extending selective service.

Obviously Congress puts no faith in these polls. Congressmen, who by the nature of things are closer to their constituents than any other group in the national government, apparently has reason to believe that the draft is viewed by the average American family with suspicion and alarm.

This issue, like many others troubling the nation, will largely be decided by the Congressional elections.

It might lead to a major calamity for the voters to attempt to pass judgment at that time without clearly understanding what those issues are.

By taking these governmental actions, along with those already put into effect, and with increased self-denial by consumers, and heavy marketings of the wheat remaining on farms, we may be able to meet our goals for exports to famine countries in the next 10 to 12 weeks.

However, no one can say that, if we meet our goals for the immediate future, the emergency will be ended this summer. Whether or not there will be a renewed famine emergency in the winter of 1946-47 cannot be said until we know how much food the world produces in 1946.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Rev. George E. Boswell
Rector
St. James' P. E. Church

—o—

Gracious God and Heavenly Father fill our hearts with gratitude for the victory Thy blessed Son won for us when he arose triumphantly from the grave. Help us truly to rejoice that Christ hast overcome death and hast opened to us the gate of everlasting life. Cleanse our eyes that we may see more clearly and understand more thoroughly the significance of the resurrection of Him who died and rose again for us. Grant that we may evermore live in the power of his resurrection through the same Thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

CHICAGO—(INS)—When W. D. Hill is told to sign on the dotted line, he has to ask whether to sign W. H. Hill, Edward J. Kelly or R. B. Upham. As deputy comptroller of Chicago his job is to sign documents for the mayor and the chief comptroller. From 12,000 to 15,000 signature of Mayor Kelly appearing each year on tax warrants, bond issues and water certificates are in Hill's handwriting. One of his biggest jobs recently was signing "Edward J. Kelly" 2,900 times for a 26 million dollar slum clearance bond issue.
